Are Your Company's Files Secure? Would You Risk Thousands of Dollars in Fines to Find Out?

Massachusetts will soon impose the most stringent data security regulations in the nation. The regulations go into effect on March 1, 2010 and will require you to secure all private personal information in your possession (employees, customers). Your files and computers must be compliant or you will be assessed fines for each breach!

With the state in need of revenue you can be sure that fines will be issued no matter what the cost to small businesses. There are no exemptions for small business either. Attend this free event and prevent thousands of dollars in potential fines!

The panel will include: A legal perspective on your business' written plan and a data technology expert.
